JAPANESE WHISKY

Whisky production began in Japan around 1870, but it's first commercial production wasn't until 1924. Broadly speaking the style of Japanese whisky is most similar to that of Scotch whisky.

BOURBON

Bourbon is an American whiskey, like Bulliet or Maker's Mark, made from at least 51% corn and aged at least two years in new charred oak barrels. It must also be distilled the United States, and is strongly associated with Kentucky. A Bourbon that meets the above requirements, has been aged for a minimum of two years, and has no added coloring, flavoring, or other spirit, may be called Straight bourbon.

SCOTCH

Scottish whisky is aged in oak casks for at least three years. Depending on the region, the Scotch may have different flavors - those from Islay, pronounced "eye-la," for example, tend to have a smoky, peaty flavor. While those from Speyside, like Macallan, are known for their smooth caramel flavors.
